

Manufacturers of Polyurethane Foam

RESOURCES WITH INFORMATION ABOUT SOY OIL AND ALLERGIES

Basically the below resources all state that highly refined soybean oil (the basis for soy polyols) contains little or no soy proteins (the allergic reaction agents) and are considered safe for use by individuals with soy allergies. The US Food and Drug Administration (FDA) does not require the labeling of products containing highly refined soybean for the above noted reason.

United Soybean Board, Inc.

www.soyconnection.com/newsletters/soy-connection/health-nutrition/article.php/Soybean+Oil+%3B+Lecithin:+Are+They+Allergenic%3F?id=40

World Health Organization Food Additive Series 44

www.inchem.org/documents/jecfa/jecmono/v44jec11.htm

Cargill, Inc.

www.experiencebioh.com/should-people-with-soy-allergies-avoid-soy-foam-products

Food Allergy Research and Resource Program - University of Nebraska-Lincoln

www.farrp.org/4-resources/articles/resourcesFAQ1.shtml

The Food Allergy & Anaphylaxis Network

www.foodallergy.org/page/soy1

www.foodallergy.org/page/soy2

US Food and Drug Administration (FDA)

www.foodlabels.com/q&a.htm#Oils

www.fns.usda.gov/fdd/facts/nutrition/foodallergenfactsheet.pdf

Corporate Office

1610 Avenue N - Council Bluffs, Iowa 51501-1071

712-323-9122 800-733-8061 Fax 712-323-0158

www.futurefoam.com